‘Not a house for the few, but a house for everyone,’ is the bold vision for the Church offered by Pope Francis in one of our major new books for 2014, The Church of Mercy.

It is a message that resonates with Darton, Longman and Todd’s approach to publishing. Our world and our Church are perhaps more fragmented and diverse than ever before yet there seems to an increasing interest in matters of heart, mind and soul. We aim to appeal to this interest through books that inform, help, challenge and entertain in a number of categories.

For those who thirst for intelligent spiritual writing there is the Pope’s book, popular authors Shirley du Boulay (A Silent Melody) and Judy Hirst (A Kind of Sleepwalking) and a beautiful first book from Lucy Mills (Forgetful Heart). For fans of biography comes Andrew Atherstone’s Archbishop Justin Welby: Risk-taker and Reconciler (the full-length follow-up to last year’s bestselling short biography), Ted Harrison’s illustrated Tales of Three Popes and the Archbishop of York John Sentamu’s Hope Stories.

The most salient issues of our time are tackled from a faith perspective by one current bishop – Alan Wilson, on same-sex marriage in More Perfect Union? – and two senior retired bishops – Peter Selby on the financial crisis in An Idol Unmasked, and Richard Harries in a new edition of his Faith in Politics? ahead of next year’s General Election. Richard Dawkins, Rowan Williams and Tony Blair lock horns in one of the chapters of the new Westminster Faith Debates book Religion in Public Life. And bestselling philosopher Keith Ward presents The Evidence for God, a compelling case for the existence of the spiritual dimension in our supposedly material world.

In fiction, look out for the third of Simon Parke’s brilliant Abbot Peter Mysteries, A Director’s Cut, and the completion of Karen Jones’ powerful trilogy of Babe’s Bible novels, Love Letter. In humour, we have a brand new book from Miranda writer Paul Kerensa, Genesis: The Bibluffer’s Guide, and an introduction to theology as you’ve never seen it before in Rich Wyld’s unique, full-colour Theologygrams. Ian Hislop and Richard Coles have contributed a Foreword and a Postscript respectively to Malcolm Johnson’s wonderful Victorian Worthies illustrated collection – also in colour throughout.

One of Darton, Longman and Todd’s most important partnerships arrives with a new series of resource booklets produced by Inclusive Church. These books combine practical guidance, personal testimony and wise theology (from the likes of Jean Vanier and John Hull) to enable churches of all denominations to better equip themselves to welcome people regardless of gender, physical ability, mental health, sexuality, social or ethnic background. A house for everyone.

We hope you enjoy our books.
